Land Acknowledgment

York University recognizes that many Indigenous Nations have longstanding relationships with the territories upon which York University campuses are located that precede the establishment of York University. York University acknowledges its presence on the traditional territory of many Indigenous Nations. The area known as Tkaronto has been care taken by the Anishinabek Nation, the Haudenosaunee Confederacy, and the Huron-Wendat. It is now home to many First Nation, Inuit, and Métis communities. We acknowledge the current treaty holders, the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation. Course Text / Readings

William Scott & Patricia O'Brien, "Financial Accounting Theory," 8th Edition, Pearson Canada. (Do not use previous editions)

Selected readings: Additional readings will be posted on the course website.

Course Learning Objectives

The primary objective of this course is to increase students' awareness and understanding of contemporary financial accounting theories, and to provide students with useful conceptual tools to guide analysis and make decisions related to financial reporting in real business world.

By the end of this course, students will be able to:

1. develop a depth and breadth in various accounting theories that are commonly used in accounting and related research.
2. formulate a thoughtful and critical appreciation of the nature and scope of current accounting practice and find the rationale for changed accounting practices.
3. develop a thorough and critical consciousness of contemporary financial accounting and reporting environment from the perspective of both internal and external users.
4. associate the importance of informativeness from the stance of both internal and external users, and also develop an understanding of how the financial statements information are used in the decision-making process of different constituencies.
5. interpret the financial statements as a source of information rather than a compilation of numeracy.
6. relate and apply various accounting valuation concepts and standards in the real-life business scenario.
7. comprehend the importance of accounting research findings and have an understanding of how these research findings are contributing toward the changed accounting practice to enhance user decision usefulness.

This course emphasizes the development of communication, critical thinking, problem solving, and teamwork skills that help equip students with the capacity to successfully navigate financial accounting issues in a globalized economy.

Assessment Descriptions

Individual Participation: This course encourages students to raise questions and comment on materials taught in the course. Students could demonstrate their engagement in the course by asking questions or making comments during class and through emails. Students could earn participation scores by sharing weekly chapter-focused reflections on the eClass discussion forum. The grade will be based on the participation quantity and quality.

Assignments (Turnitin enabled submission): Homework assignments will be from end-of-chapter problems. You can find the assignment from the 'list of weekly assignment questions' posted in the general section of the course eClass site. The solutions will be posted after the homework due date, which is set for Wednesday day at 11:59 pm. Refer to the Weekly Timetable for specific due dates on page 5. You are expected to make 5 submissions, each worth 5% marks. To finish your assignment, you are expected to take all reasonable steps to ensure that the required reading and writing are complete. Late submission will result in a 1-mark penalty every 24 hours for each homework.

Midterm: There is one timed and closed-book midterm exam (see 'Weekly Timetable' on the following page). The midterm is a two-hour exam covering chapters starting from Week 1 to Week 5 (i.e., Ch1-6). Students who miss the midterm should contact the professor within 48 hours, and the professor will arrange a replacement of the midterm exam at the professor's discretion.

Group Project: The group project will be assigned in end-February when we have a more stable class size. Group members will be assigned on a random basis. Each group will be given a project, and you need to apply what you learned from the course to finish the project. Note that I reserve the right to adjust group members when the situation becomes necessary. If this happens, a lottery system will be used.

Final Exam: The format and structure of the final exam will be announced in class. It will be a two-hour, timed exam covering chapters starting from Week 3 (i.e., Ch4-13).

Bonus Mark (1%)

At the course directors' discretion, students in this course may receive a 1% bonus if 70% or more of them complete the online course evaluation. The course directors will explain the importance of evaluations and provide time in class for completing the evaluation.

Late Work Policy

There is no late work policy for this course. Please update your calendar with all due dates to be mindful about all the deadlines. Note that extensions are not possible given the pedagogical role of the term activities.

Missed Tests and Exams

Students who miss the midterm will automatically have the weight (25%) transferred to the final exam. Most importantly, due to the departmental maximum weight transfer rule, the final exam's weight (after reallocation) should not exceed 70%.

At the same time, the student(s) will be reported to the Dean's Office to keep a written record. Note that it is effortless for modern technology to detect plagiarism, whether you are copying from your classmates or other sources. The University has software designed for this purpose. Using Generative Artificial Intelligence in this Course

Students are not permitted to use generative artificial intelligence (AI) in this course. Submitting any work created through the use of generative AI tools will be considered a violation of York University's Senate Policy on Academic Honesty. If you do not know whether an online resource or tool can be used in this course, please contact your instructor for guidance. For more information, please review AI Technology & Academic Integrity: Information for Students

Under the current Senate Policy on Academic Honesty, a student's use of generative artificial intelligence (AI), including text-generating chatbots (e.g., OpenAI's ChatGPT, Microsoft's Bing Chat and Google's Bard) and image-generating tools (e.g., DALL-E, Stable Diffusion and Midjourney) among others, can be considered an act of academic dishonesty if the following conditions are met:

- There is written evidence that student uses of generative AI will be considered by the instructor as unauthorized assistance. For example, the instructor has explicitly indicated in their course outline that students are prohibited from using generative AI in the completion of their assignments, tests and other assessments. This position is reiterated in written assignment, test and assessment instructions.
- The student's work includes potential signs of unauthorized AI assistance, as indicated in the checklist below. Depending on the learning context, a student's unauthorized use of generative AI can constitute one or more violations of the Senate Policy on Academic Honesty.

Course Policies

All students are expected to familiarize themselves with the following information:

- Student Rights & Responsibilities
- Academic Accommodation for Students with Disabilities

Please also review the following course policies:

Academic Integrity

As a student at York University, you have a responsibility to both understand and uphold the integrity of the academic experience. The Faculty of Liberal Arts & Professional Studies supports the International Center for Academic Integrity's definition of academic integrity. That is, you will be committed to acting in all academic matters, even in the face of adversity, with honesty, trust, fairness, courage, respect and responsibility. Here is how you can demonstrate academic integrity in the completion of this course:

- Respect the ideas of others: Your course work should represent your own knowledge and ideas. You should not falsely claim credit for ideas that are not your own, by presenting another's work as yours. If you are quoting, paraphrasing, or summarizing another person's work in order to support your own ideas, identify the work and the author through proper citation practices. For more information about how to cite properly, use the Student Papers and Academic Research Kit (SPARK).

You can improve your writing, research, and personal learning abilities through the Learning Commons, or by visiting the Writing Centre or ESL Open Learning Centre.

- Respect your peers: Know when you are allowed to collaborate. Ask your instructor about what group work entails when it comes to the sharing of work. In test situations and assignments, don't steal or give answers to your peers, whether in-person or online (e.g., in group chats and/or on third-party content-sharing websites, such as Chegg, Course Hero, etc.). Both cheating and aiding in a breach of academic honesty are violations of York University's academic honesty policy.
- Respect your course instructor(s): Understand what your instructors are asking of you in class, as well as on assignments, tests and/or exams. If you are unsure, ask your professor or teaching assistant. They are committed to making you feel supported and want to assess you fairly and with integrity. Please do not submit the same piece of work for more than one course without your instructor's permission. That can be considered an act of cheating.
- Respect yourself: When you act with integrity, you know that your work is yours and yours alone. You do not allow others to take tests for you. You do not buy or otherwise obtain term papers or assignments. You do the work. As a result, you know that you earned the grades that you receive, so you can be proud of your York degree. By acting with integrity in your course work, you are also practising a valuable professional skill that is important in all workplaces.
- Take responsibility: If you have acted in an academically dishonest way, you can demonstrate courage and take responsibility for your mistake. You can admit your mistake to your course instructor as soon as possible.

Students who engage in academic dishonesty can be subject to disciplinary action under the Senate Policy on Academic Honesty. Your lack of familiarity with the Senate Policy does not constitute a defense against its application. Some academic offences can also constitute offences under the Criminal Code of Canada, which means that you may also be subject to criminal charges.

Turnitin

To promote academic integrity in this course, students will normally be required to submit their written assignments to Turnitin (via the course's eClass site) for a review of textual similarities and the detection of possible plagiarism. In so doing, students will allow their material to be included as source documents in the Turnitin.com reference database, where they will be used only for the purpose of detecting plagiarism. The terms that apply to the University's use of the Turnitin service are described on the Turnitin.com website. York students may opt out of using Turnitin. If you wish to opt out, you should contact your instructor as soon as possible.

Accessibility

While all individuals are expected to satisfy the requirements of their program of study and to aspire to achieve excellence, the University recognizes that persons with disabilities may require reasonable accommodation to enable them to perform at their best. The University encourages students with disabilities to register with Student Accessibility Services to discuss their accommodation needs as early as possible in the term to establish the recommended academic accommodations that will be communicated to Course Directors through their Letter of Accommodation (LOA).

Please let your instructor know as early as possible in the term if you anticipate requiring academic accommodation so that we can discuss how to consider your accommodation needs within the context of this course. Sufficient notice is needed so that reasonable steps for accommodation can be discussed. Accommodations for tests/exams normally require three (3) weeks (or 21 days) before the scheduled test/exam to arrange.

Religious Observance Accommodation

York University is committed to respecting the religious beliefs and practices of all members of the community, and making reasonable and appropriate accommodations to adherents for observances of special significance. Should any of the dates specified in this syllabus for course examinations, tests, or deadlines conflict with a date of religious significance, please contact the instructor within the first three (3) weeks of class. If the date falls within the formal examination periods, you must complete and submit a Religious Accommodation for Examination Form at least three (3) weeks before the start of the exam period.
