Land Acknowledgment

York University recognizes that many Indigenous Nations have longstanding relationships with the territories upon which York University campuses are located that precede the establishment of York University. York University acknowledges its presence on the traditional territory of many Indigenous Nations. The area known as Tkaronto has been care taken by the Anishinabek Nation, the Haudenosaunee Confederacy, and the Huron-Wendat. It is now home to many First Nation, Inuit, and Métis communities. We acknowledge the current treaty holders, the Mississaugas of the Credit First Nation. This territory is subject of the Dish with One Spoon Wampum Belt Covenant, an agreement to peaceably share and care for the Great Lakes region (LA&PS Land Acknowledgement).

Course Description

The Management Policy course is designed to expose students to many facets of strategy and strategic management that contribute to competitive differences across organizations. Strategic analysis and formulation are developed through lectures and case discussions. The course emphasizes integrating subject matter from prior management courses to inform a complete strategic management framework.

Course Overview & Learning Objectives

This course examines the challenges of the strategic management process—identifying opportunities and threats, formulating responses, evaluating prior decisions, and implementing viable organizational strategies. The emphasis is on issues that affect the success of the entire organization. As such, we will view the organization as a whole while drawing upon and integrating your understanding of the various functional areas of organizations, their decision-makers, their resources, and the external factors that influence strategy-making.

To increase your competence in managing the strategic process, extensive use of the case study method is employed. This allows us to practice business decision-making skills in simulated management roles. To maximize the learning opportunities, all students must be prepared to discuss the assigned cases. Student participation in class discussions is essential for success in this course and an important building block for future career success in management.

By the end of this course, students will be able to:

- Identify and critique the components of strategy (business goals, product/market focus, value propositions, core activities) and differentiate business-level strategy from corporate-level strategy
- Utilize the results of their analyses to understand the trade-offs between what the company needs to do (industry trends and structure), wants to do (management preferences), and can do (resources & capabilities) while reconciling each in making strategic recommendations
- Propose, justify, and defend arguments and recommendations about complex business problems through class debates and interactions that will prepare them for today's competitive workplace

Prerequisites and Enrollment Policy

Prerequisites: 78 credits including AP/ECON 1000 3.00; AP/ECON 1010 3.00 and AP/ADMS 2320 3.00 (or equivalent).

Course Credit Exclusions: None.

Prior to Fall 2009

Prerequisites: 78 credits including AK/ECON 1000 3.00; AK/ECON 1010 3.00 and six credits in management science.

Should students have any questions about the enrolment policy, please contact the Office of Administrative Studies or Management Area assistant (Suganiya Jeevaratnam, sjeeva8@yorku.ca). Instructors do not handle enrolment-related issues. Due to the nature of the course, there is no permission for late enrolment.

Course Format and Organization

Lectures, discussions, and case analyses form the basic pedagogy of this course. We will also have in-class individual and group activities. For all classes, students are expected to study the assigned readings in full and be prepared to participate in discussions. Constructive class contributions are an integral part of this course. Your contribution will be evaluated based on your preparation for class discussions based on assigned readings and cases, presentation skills, and willingness to engage in moving class discussions forward. Timely attendance and quality contributions are important elements of your overall evaluation.

Each session is about three hours. Normally, there are assigned chapters and a case in each session. In the first half of the session, we will mainly focus on the assigned chapters and concepts to deepen our knowledge of the subject matter. You are required to read the assigned chapters before the class. We will apply the chapter concepts to case studies in the second half of each session.

Preparing for Class

During class, it will be assumed that you have done the readings. You will be called upon to apply the tools and concepts contained in the readings to the case analyses. Strategic management frameworks will aid your analysis and understanding of cases. Mini lectures will be used in class to explain the most effective ways to apply the frameworks; however, you should attempt to apply the frameworks on your own as you prepare for each session.

Strategy cases are complex and benefit from multiple perspectives and sharing your analysis and thoughts with others. You are strongly encouraged to meet with your classmates and discuss each case before the class session.

Course Evaluation

Assessment	Date	Weight %
Class Participation	Assessed Weekly	20%
Mid-Term Exam	March 2, 2023	30%
Group Assignment	Sessions 9-11 (below)	30%
Final Exam	April 2, 2024	20%
		100%

Class Participation Expectations

Class participation is worth 20% of your final grade and depends upon your active participation in class discussions. I treat classes as though they are business meetings focused on solving a problem. Class participation is about punctual attendance and, most importantly, moving class discussions forward. I will evaluate each student's participation after each session based on the quality of contributions and regular engagement in moving discussions forward. Good quality participation involves stimulating an in-depth discussion, resolving challenges with the subject matter, or engaging in respectful debate among classmates. Repetitive comments or simple summaries of the case are considered marginal contributions. If students have difficulty participating, please contact me and we can formulate a joint plan on how to best engage in class discussions.

Your class participation grade is based on 10 sessions in which students will be able to participate (beginning in session 2). The 10 sessions are comprised of 7 content sessions (chapter and case discussions) and 3 group presentation sessions where students will have opportunities to ask questions. Consistently above-average engagement in class discussions across the term is required to achieve higher class participation grades (above 16 points out of 20) while sporadic or consistently below-average engagement in class discussion will result in lower class participation grades. To account for the potential errors in evaluating participation or situations where students might have to miss sessions for unexpected events, your participation in this component will be based on your best 8 sessions. Because I treat classes as professional sessions to prepare you for the work environment, my expectation is that you will let me know if you are going to miss class or be late for class.

Mid-Term Exam

The mid-term exam is worth 30% of your final grade. This exam will be based on your understanding of the concepts, frameworks, and content from the textbook. The exam will include a variety of question formats and will draw on Chapters 1 to 6 in the textbook. You are expected to understand the material whether it has been covered in class or not. Keeping up with your readings will be essential to your success! Details and pre-exam guidance will be provided before reading week.

For administration purposes, students who miss the original midterm are required to notify the instructor (by email) prior to the start of the exam on March 2. Without such an email notification of the exam absence, you will receive a zero grade for the mid-term exam. The weight of this component cannot be transferred to other grade components. Accordingly, students who have missed both original and make-up mid-term exams will have to defer the mid-term component to the mid-term exam when the course is available again.

Group Assignment

This course puts great emphasis on group work as an essential component in the contemporary business world. As a result, the group assignment is worth 30% of your final grade. Students are expected to form a group of 5 members depending upon the size of the class. Individuals may self-select their groups, with names of group members to be submitted to me via email or in writing no later than January 23rd (3rd class). Students who have not found a group by that point will be assigned to one. Once groups have been formed, switching group members will not be permitted (so choose wisely). Please be advised that each group member is responsible for the overall group's performance and dynamics. I will not be involved in adjudicating group-related issues.

Sessions 9 to 11 are designated for group presentations. Specifically, in each of these sessions, there will be two assigned pairs of groups. The first half of the session will involve the first group pairing—one group will present followed by a constructive assessment by another group. The second half of the session will proceed similarly, except with the roles reversed.

Group Presentation (25%)

The purpose of the group presentation is to help students develop their case analysis and presentation skills. Each group will be assigned a case study and act as the consulting team outlining a complete case analysis and recommendation. Presentations are expected to be no longer than 25 minutes (you will be cut off at the 25-minute mark).

There is no required format for the presentations. Clarity and creativity are crucial. Since your presentation is based on an assigned case, your analysis should be limited to the case materials only. Additional research is not necessary nor is it recommended. Groups are required to email me a 1-page (single-spaced, 12-point font, 1-inch margins) executive summary of your case analysis at least 24 hours before the beginning of your scheduled group presentation. Late submissions will receive a 3-point penalty.

Empirical evidence shows that a high level of group performance requires effective teamwork and input from individual group members. However, experience tells us that groups are subject to 'free riders.' Accordingly, your individual grade for this component will be partly based on peer evaluation. For individuals with average peer evaluations that are one standard deviation above the group's average peer evaluation, those individuals will receive 3 additional grade points to the group grade I assign. In contrast, individuals with average peer evaluations that fall one standard deviation below the group's average peer evaluation will receive a score that is 3 points lower than the group grade.

Each individual will complete an evaluation form, available on eClass, to provide evaluations of other group members. The evaluation will be based on five criteria:

1. Teamwork: Draws out the best from others, moves the group toward task completion, communicates and adds value to group tasks
2. Initiative and dependability: Fulfills responsibilities on time and according to expectations of the group
3. Quality of output: Oral and written components were of high quality
4. Contribution to knowledge and learning: Effectively understood, utilized, and demonstrated knowledge of course materials
5. Professionalism: Attended meetings on time, responded to emails/messages promptly, and respected other group members

Since peer evaluation significantly contributes to your individual grade, you should take it seriously. You are required to submit your evaluation 1 day after your group presentation (by midnight). It is important to submit your evaluation on time as individual grades will be calculated two days after your presentation. Late submissions are not permitted. You will receive a 3-point penalty if you fail to submit your evaluation on time.

Group Assessment (5%)

The purpose of the assessment is to provide you with an opportunity to extend class learning while developing the listening skills critical to working in modern organizations. For each group presentation, there will be one group assigned to assess the quality of the presentation and recommendations put forth by the presenting group. Each assessing group will have 15 minutes to present an assessment. Groups are encouraged to develop their assessment criteria but should emphasize both positive aspects of the presentation (content and style) and areas for improvement. The 5% will be evaluated based on the degree of constructive feedback provided by the group. Strong assessments focus on helping the presenting group rather than criticizing what was presented. Only group members who are present during the assigned assessment time receive credit. Group members who are not present in class for the assessment will receive zero credit for this component.

Guidance for the Presenting Groups

Your presentation can be as creative as you wish, but should cover the following areas:

1. Issue Identification (what issues are important to analyze?)
2. Issue Analysis (why are these issues and what options should be considered?)
3. Recommendations/Solutions (what option is best and why?)
4. Implementation/Action (how will you execute on your selection option?)

Guidance for the Audience

To be a good audience, you need to listen to the presentation closely and read the case material in advance. By doing so, you will find that you can learn a great deal from the presenting groups. You will be invited to ask any questions you may have during the question and answer portion (10-15 minutes after the presentation and before the group assessment). Keep in mind that your questions need to be constructive and relevant to the presentation and course materials. Your participation in the question and answer portion is considered part of your class participation.

Final Exam

The final exam is worth 20% of your final grade and will be a 3-hour exam. The exam is a case analysis in which students are required to apply all materials we discuss in the class to analyze the case and make recommendations.
